Senior News

The seniors are very busy these days. The personal cards have arrived and will be given out probably sometime next week.

The senior pictures for the annual have been taken. They were taken in Lynchburg on Dec. 27.

The seniors bought Christmas gifts for the people at the rest homes in Spout Spring and Appomattox. Two school buses of seniors visited the rest homes on Dec. 19, carried the gifts and baskets of fruit and sang Christmas carols.

We are very proud of one of our senior boys, Dennis Torrence. He won first place in the tractor driving contest at the Farmville Fair in 1958. He received fifteen dollars and a trip to the Pennsylvania State Farm Show to be held at Harrisburg, Penn., January 13 and 14.

Senior Tri-Hi-Y News

During the month of December, the Senior Tri-Hi-Y girls had a candy and candle sale.

The December meeting was held Dec. 19 and the program was centered around a "White Christmas." Many packages of food and other useful articles were brought to the meeting and later given to a needy family.

GARDEN SUGGESTIONS ARE IN ORDER

...These garden suggestions by Mr. L. C. Bramer, V. P. I. Garden Specialist, should be of help to you in 1959.

The Vegetable Garden Will Pay: The home garden will pay and will supply fresh, high quality vegetables for the family throughout the year.

January is the time to plan the garden, order seed, clean up the garden, and plow or spade the land.

Location and Size of Garden: The home garden should be located as close to the home as possible. The size of the garden depends upon the needs of the family and the land available. A well-kept small garden is much better than one too large which has been poorly cared for during the growing season. Locating the garden close to the home will save time and you will often produce more vegetables of a higher quality because you will take better care of it.

A half an acre garden is the average size for a family of five. You should be able to produce enough to provide the family with fresh vegetables plus enough for canning, freezing, and storing for the winter months.

Garden Clean Up: If you do not have a cover crop, January is the month when all weeds and grasses should be removed from the garden or plowed under. If the old vegetables such as kale, collards, etc., are diseased, remove them before plowing. Cleaning up and plowing or spading the garden early is a must with the successful home gardener.

Organic Matter: Organic matter in the vegetable garden is an important factor. Manure, cover crops, compost material, or sawdust can be used. If manure is not available, sawdust is a good substitute. One inch of sawdust applied before spading or plowing will add valuable organic matter to the soil. If you apply sawdust, add 8 to 10 pounds of 20% nitrogen material or its equivalent per 1000 square feet at the same time. One pint of fertilizer weights about a pound.

HEALTH TALK

By Benjamin B. Blackmon, M. D.

Infectious mononucleosis, or "glandular fever" has become a fairly commonly encountered disease among children and young adults. The groups most frequently affected of all are those in high school and college.

The actual cause of this disease process is not definitely known. However, all experimental evidence leads us to believe it results from a virus infection.

It apparently is not a highly contagious infection, and does not have epidemic qualities. The mode of transmission is thought to be from direct contact.

The usual picture is very similar to that seen in an acute viral infection. There is a characteristic period of onset accompanied by sore throat, nasal stuffiness, coughing, headache, and the general complaints of influenza. One of the characteristic features with this disease is generalized enlargement of the lymph glands, particularly with those in the back of the neck. This is one of the features which leads a doctor to suspect the possibility of this disease when seeing a variety and number of cases of 'flu' or disease of viral origin.

Probably the most important reason for recognizing glandular fever is that the treatment, although very simple, is at the same time extremely singular. Absolute and strict bed rest is mandatory, and is required usually from three to six weeks, depending on the individual involvement. This factor is not generally recognized, and its importance cannot be over-emphasized. Many times sub-clinical or unrecognized acute phases of this disease occur, followed by a disguised remission for a period of time. In these cases there is later a gradual loss of energy, sluggishness, and headaches and other symptoms of general malaise, and possibly a low-grade fever. Those unfortunate individuals are more resistant to a prompt recovery once the sub-acute or chronic process has developed.

This disease is not a really serious or fatal disease. However, it can be extremely debilitating, especially when it occurs in an extremely active and vital group of individuals. When adequate bed rest is enforced, with early recognition of its presence, there is usually no particular complication, and after a variable period of guarded activity the youngster may return to a completely normal and active existence.

Mayor Moses Reports on Budget

To The Citizens of Town of Appomattox:

You fine people are to be congratulated for the wonderful spirit and courteous cooperation that has been shown during the recent holidays, which have been enjoyed by everyone.

Let's everybody take a look around our property and make a special effort to remove or burn all trash and debris that has collected.

Beginning January 1st, 1959, the Town started operating on the new budget. You will find a copy of this in The Times-Virginian. It is my hope and desire that every interested citizen will take a few moments to study this new budget. In the event any of you should have a copy of the 1958 budget, upon checking one against the other, you will find some increase. But I can sincerely say that I feel this normal and justified. The Council did a fine job last year of operating within a balanced budget. The budget is again balanced for 1959 and I feel sure that unless some drastic emergency arises, that the Council will be able to operate the Town again this year within the figures shown.

Let me take this opportunity to congratulate the Finance Committee for the fine job I think they have done in preparing this approved budget.

During the month of January, the Town books will be audited by a certified Public Accountant. Just as soon as this is completed, a financial report will be published in The Times-Virginian.

Again, let me plead with all of you good citizens to be most careful to see that your stoves or furnaces do not become overheated during this cold spell. We all realize the destruction that a fire can cause, so let's maintain every safety precaution that we can.

Your counsel and advice on all public matters is welcomed at all times.

Sincerely,
C. T. .Moses, Jr.
Mayor, ,Town of Appomattox.

About The Home

The art of arranging flowers comes in for a lot of attention by women with the time to discuss things of little import for hours. It seems that there are two different styles one must imploy when arranging blooms.

The Interpretive composition seems to dominate the flower-shows. The interpretive composition is designed to convey specific idea or theme. A prize example is the title given to an arrangement in one show—"Man Exploring Space."

No matter how beautiful an arrangement "Man Exploring Space" may have been, we bet a better title could have been chosen. Also, we wonder why any title is necessary for a lovely arrangement of flowers.

American women have become interested in the classical Japanese style of arranging flowers. This school takes full advantage of the beauty of line possible with a few well chosen blooms and the beauty of texture found in woods, bits of stone and various plant material. Sculptured or ceramic figures are often decorated with interesting bits of greenery to form an effective focal arrangement for a living room, dining room or hall.

Arrangements making use of dried material and driftwood have become quite popular. The drying of plant material has grown into a big business. Many pieces of ingenious special equipment have come into being to make the drying possible on a commercial scale.

The busy and demanding life led by most modern homemakers must account for the large demand for arrangements with lasting value. Fake flowers that can hardly be detected, even upon very close inspection, from the real blooms are another sign of our times. These flowers are expensive, but when you consider that with a little dusting and care they are cheap at most any price.

The several million blue-prints used in the construction of the Navy's newest aircraft carrier USS Independence, would form a pathway 30 inches wide extending for 2,100 miles.
